

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Mr. Churchill, Washington, July 31.—IT SEEMED incredible to millions in this country when news came that the British people, not long since in deadly peril from a ruthless foe, had rejected the polls the man without whom there would have been no free election in which the British people could participate, nor, in fact, a British Empire.

FOR THAT is the way it appeared to a vast number here who thrilled and still do—at those marvelously moving utterances of Mr. Churchill and responded, even at his supposedly safe distance, to the stark courage of that indomitable man whose never-to-be-forgotten "we shall never surrender" speech rallied a relatively unarmed nation, forced the ready-to-invade enemy into fatal hesitation. There, of course, will be dissenters, but most men who clearly recall the facts will always feel that in those early days, when England stood alone, Mr. Churchill not only saved the British Empire, but civilization itself; that without his leadership, which no one else could have supplied, Germany would have won the war before we got into it.

F THAT HAD happened, the position of the United States need not be stressed here. It is easy to imagine. Perhaps this is too much to attribute solely to Mr. Churchill, though to many it will not seem an overstatement. At any rate, not even his political opponents question that the British people, and he, and the world as well, owe him a mighty debt. And yet, at the first opportunity following the German collapse, the British electorate overwhelmingly voted him out of power before his work was wholly finished and in the midst of a great conference of the heads of the three nations whose combined might had averted the ultimate disaster. There was humiliation in that. It could be interpreted as lack of confidence.

SUT WAS IT?—Since the votes were counted, many explanations of more or less plausibility have been offered. It is said that Mr. Churchill made a mistake in forcing the election so early and that his campaign was unskillful and aroused resentment. It is said that the people were not tired of him, but weary of the little "Kitchen Continued on Page Two

JAPAN'S WAR DAMAGE MOUNTS TO MOST STAGGERING HEIGHTS; BOMBARDMENTS OF 22 DAYS TAKE TOLL OF 22 VESSELS

Ground Installation Damage By Carrier Planes Also Huge

BREAK NAVY'S BACK Shimizu Shelled by American Destroyers; 75 Miles from Tokyo

By Joseph A. St. Amant (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

Japan's war damage mounted to staggering heights today. Twenty-two days of air and sea bombardments by British and American naval units have left the Japanese Empire with a shipping loss of almost 1,000 vessels of all types and have resulted in destruction of damage of more than 1,400 Jap airplanes.

Added to these huge losses is the damage inflicted to ground installations by carrier planes, by huge fleets of B-29s and by smaller Army bombers and fighters based almost in the shadow of the Jap homeland.

Named Research Head Of Large Corporation

EASTON, July 31.—Dr. William E. Hanford, manager of the central research laboratory of General Aniline and Film Corporation at Easton, has been named director of research of the company, George W. Burpee, president, announced today. Dr. Hanford will be in charge of the company's expanding research program which concerns company products such as dyestuffs, film, detergents and Oxalid sensitized materials, as well as fundamental research in many fields.

Dr. Hanford was born in Bristol, and was graduated from Bristol High School in 1925. He took his Ph. D. in chemistry, at the University of Illinois in 1935 and for seven years prior to joining Aniline and Film in 1942 worked for E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company. His work on polymers, acetylene chemistry and surface active agents has earned him an outstanding position in organic research. He is councillor of the Society for the Advancement of Science, a member of Phi Beta Kappa and of the American Chemical Society.

Approve Appointment Of Ass't Probation Officer

DOYLESTOWN, July 31.—The appointment of Miss Kathryn C. Stead, of Germantown, as assistant Juvenile Probation officer of Bucks county, has been approved by the court.

Rapidly increasing juvenile court business has made the additional appointment necessary. Miss Stead will be an assistant to Probation Officer, Miss Gertrude Bright, of Doylestown.

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEAINED BY SCRIBES

The North Penn Fish, Game and Forestry Club, Sellersville, which dispenses with the monthly meetings in July and August, held a special meeting the past week to permit members to voice a protest over the action of the State Game Commission in declaring an open season on doe in that area of the State between Easton and Harrisburg and south of Route 22.

Sportsmen of that area are primarily interested in upper Bucks county, and unrestrained criticism directed at the ruling left no doubt as to where the local sportsmen stand.

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

(By International News Service)

JAP LOSSES STAGGERING IN PAST 3 WEEKS

Guam—Staggering Japanese shipping and aircraft losses mounted today with a final report by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz on Saturday's record carrier onslaught against the Island Sea area.

Nimitz's latest communique raised unofficial estimates of Jap losses in 22 days of Anglo-American air-sea attacks to at least 1,013 enemy ships and 1,409 aircraft destroyed or damaged.

Results from Saturday's carrier attacks in Nimitz's final report showed 139 Jap ships sunk or damaged and 292 planes destroyed or damaged.

Less than ten hours previous to this communique, Nimitz had revealed that 69 Jap ships were sunk or damaged yesterday in continuing carrier strikes at Honshu. In addition, 135 Jap planes were reported destroyed or crippled in raids on some 60 enemy airfields in the Tokyo area yesterday.

Kandy, Ceylon—Southeast Asia Command Headquarters reported today that heavy casualties have been inflicted on Japanese troops trapped between the Mandalay-Rangoon road and the Sittang river.

OPA AND PEACE

If the United States loses the peace after winning the war, one bureaucratic agency of the New Deal may prove to have been more to blame than any other factor of our national life.

That agency is OPA.

The statement just made may sound extreme. What connection can there be between the OPA, with its staff of 325,000 Federal employees busy on the food and price fronts, and the problems of post-war peace?

Yet the connection is there, and the effect of OPA's various failures upon our future position in the world and relationship with other nations is easy to show.

What are the ways in which America can lose the peace? In general, there are only two: one, by losing our position of world leadership—by allowing new enemies and suspicions to grow up in the place of those which caused the last war; and two, by losing our own industrial birthright to some of the other rivals in this field.

If America can emerge from war respected and loved by the other nations of the world, and if the industrial ingenuity and enterprise of this country are allowed free play in the postwar world, there can be hope for future peace and security.

What is the greatest need of the war-crushed races in Europe and throughout other parts of the globe?

It is food.

After these peoples are fed and clothed and sheltered will come the occasion when American leadership can manifest through guidance and spiritual inspiration; but without the physical needs so urgently demanded, the battle for world unity may be lost before it begins.

Now, for almost the first time in our whole national life, we of America face a shortage instead of a surplus of food and other necessities. We haven't enough for ourselves of many staple items—sugar, meat, etc.

Yet never in history have we more urgently needed a surplus to meet the calls from millions of newly-delivered people hopefully turning to us for physical aid.

Why is it that such a shortage exists in the richest and most productive nation the world has ever seen?

Partly of course it is the result of twelve years' application of the evil philosophy of planned scarcity. The spectre of the slaughtered pigs and plowed under corn of the early days of the Wallace regime are still with us.

But principally the blame lies at the door of OPA. Installed to meet two essential needs—supply and price—the agency concentrated all its energies on the second; and fought a losing battle against inflation which succeeded only in largely drying up production.

Sugar fled from American sugarbowl and preserving kettles because of long-winded, stubborn and meaningless fights over fractions of a cent in the Cuban and Puerto Rican markets.

A tempest in a teapot on the grain market in Chicago, when OPA backed its own ideas against the judgment of grain and meat producers throughout the country, saved a fractional rise in grain prices—but precipitated the following chain of events:

Drove corn—the staple grain of the poultry and hog industries—into hiding in farmers' cribs; thereby produced the greatest glut of pork and lard in American history; led to the heaviest killing of poultry in many years; caused farmers throughout the country to slaughter laying hens, milk cows and brood sows for meat; and thereby

CANNING SESSION TO BE HELD ON THURSDAY

Home-Makers Can Help To Avoid A National Food Shortage

BOOKLETS AS GIFTS ALL ARE BOYS

Avert a national food shortage! This is the watchword for the home-makers of America as a whole and of Bristol in particular at present.

Latest approved methods of preserving vegetables and fruits for winter use will be explained at the canning school which The Bristol Courier will sponsor on Thursday, August 2nd. The session will be held in St. James' parish house, Wood and Walnut streets, at two o'clock.

A lecturer-demonstrator and her assistant will instruct Bristol women in proper canning methods, and as at the past two schools will give many helpful suggestions.

Canning booklets will be distributed. Other dates for canning sessions are August 15th and 30th. Preserve your Victory Garden surplus!

Bungalow on Knights Road Guttered by Flames

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, July 31.—The two local fire companies, Cornwells No. 1 and Union, answered an alarm for fire at the home of Joseph Vencewicz, Knights Road, below Duncas Ferry Road, yesterday.

The three-room bungalow occupied by Vencewicz was gutted by the flames, and furniture in the living-room and bedroom destroyed. Cause of the fire is undetermined.

The blaze was discovered by two men working in a field nearby. At first they thought the smoke they saw was a trash pile, then saw flames emanating from the roof of the bungalow. They summoned the firemen who provided water from their tank wagons.

This is the second fire at the Vencewicz home within a few months. The blaze yesterday apparently started in the living room, it is stated. No one was at home at the time.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

WITH THE 4th RECON SQUADRON IN THE ASSEMBLY AREA, July 31.—Rated on recent performance, the 4th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron is in a big hurry to get home and on its way to the Pacific, and with it is Sgt. Joseph L. Lelinski, 276 Green Lane, Bristol, Pa.

This 9th Army unit set something of a record by completing the redeployment processing in 3½ days led by Lt. Col. Ralph L. Foster of Colrain, Mass. (no street address) the 4th arrived in Camp Atlanta of the Assembly Area Command, near Chalons, France, late July 3. It was ready to leave for LeHavre and embarkation at noon July 7.

The 4th became operational on Dec. 13, 1944, at Linlich, Germany, just before the German breakthrough. It spanned the Roer river under the 9th Army's famous artillery canopy of Feb. 23, and in 16 days was on the Rhine. It spearheaded the drive to the Elbe, patrols contacting the Russians.

The 4th has battle participation stars for the Rhineland and Central Europe campaigns, and 10 Silver Stars, 20 Bronze Stars and 119 Purple Hearts among its 37 officers and 602 enlisted men.

THE SOAP PROBLEM

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, in an effort to stop the hoarding and "panic buying" of soap, assures the public that there will be no shortage. The standards to lay in supplies has already reached sizable proportions.

Mr. Anderson's positive statement that he has no intention of ordering rationing of soap should help to allay fears. So will his explanation of what has been done to meet the situation. Measures have been taken, he says, to add 100,000,000 pounds to "heavy duty" soaps during the next 12 months without requiring the use of additional fats and oils. Meanwhile, the Army has reduced its requirements for the next six months, so quotas of fats for the civilian product need not be cut.

"All of this," he says, "should result in a substantial increase in the amount of soap available for civilians and should persuade housewives of this country to discontinue the practice of raiding the shelves of stores as soon as a new shipment of soap arrives."

It is to be hoped that it will.

As things are now, many housewives are unable to get the soap
they need and only the forehanded have ample supplies.

There is only one effective way to avoid panic buying of any commodity and that is to plan in advance for an ample supply. It is only when replenishments are not available to fill shelves that housewives go on a buying rampage.

LONG ROAD TO PEACE

Having learned much in previous peace negotiations with Germany, the Allies will profit by the knowledge gained and will approach the matter of future
treaties in a most indirect, roundabout manner. It would be the American policy to simply walk up to the German representatives and say, "Sign here." As a matter of fact, actual signing of peace treaties with Germany may not occur until 1950, after five years of preliminaries.

Following World War I, a peace was signed with Germany to the neglect of German satellite nations. This gave Germany the jump on her neighbors in matters of reconstruction. The present plan calls for negotiations with Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Austria before the deal is closed with Germany. In this way, it is hoped Germany will be surrounded by strong neighbors
the next time she feels the urge to start a war.

During the five years which will elapse under this plan there will be ample time to observe the German attitude toward world peace. It will be possible to ascertain if the German people want peace, or if they see the nation's destiny wrapped in future wars.
What is more important, it will be possible to see what sort of Germany will best fit into the European picture, changed by five years of peace.

"HELEN COMES HOME"

By WATKINS E. WRIGHT

CHAPTER TWENTY

HELEN WATCHED ZOE hurry
down the lane, and then told Nebuchadnezzar to get a move on. She even hummed a little. The meeting she had been dreading hadn't been at all bad. Quite natural in every aspect, in fact. Evidently Zoe wanted to be friends; evidently she had done anything in the least out of the way in running off with another girl's fiancé.

"Giddyup, Nebbie!" she said.
Dick said, "She's purty, but I don't like her much."

"Mrs. Wentworth?" said Helen.
"Yes'm. People never call a boy
'Dickie' unless they're sort of—of silly."

Helen put her arm about the boy,
hugged him close to her.

"She didn't mean anything, Dick," she said. "Lots of people just don't understand how boys feel about their names."

Dick grinned. "You do, Miss Sellen," he said. "You and Miss Munnifer."

"And your dad."

"Yes'm. But Dad understands everything."

They came to the end of the lane and turned west. Soon they could see the water of the little lake glimmering through the trees. A white heron, disturbed by the sound of Nebuchadnezzar's clumping feet, soared upward, his long,
thin legs stretched out behind him,
his long neck and beak stretched out before him.

"I wonder," said Helen, "if we can find a boat."

"Old Mr. Mosher, who takes care of the boathouse when summer comes," said Dick, "ought to be around some place."

"They got out and tied Nebuchadnezzar to a tree, and then they ran down a winding walk which ended at a rustic sort of building that served as a dance pavilion and a protection for the flat-bottom boats that were for hire."

"Listen!" said Dick. "I hear someone hammering."

"So do I!" said Helen. They hurried toward the sound, and found Mr. Mosher. "Well, a sight for sore eyes!"

Mr. Mosher looked up, adjusted his glasses. "So are you, Miss Sellen," he said. "Haven't seen you in ages! Recollect many's the time I took you out in one of them
boats."

"I remember also," said Helen.
"Have you got one Dick and I can use now?"

"Er course I have!" The old man led them to a boat which had recently been painted. "You can take this one out and chisten her."

The Great Game of Politics

"Cabinet" by which he was surrounded and showed this by the extraordinary way in which, while Mr. Churchill retained his seat in the House of Commons, nearly all his ministers except Mr. Eden lost theirs. It is further said that the election was a revolt of the people against the "stand-pat torism" of Mr. Churchill's Conservative party.

IT IS SAID that the Labor party's program is in tune with the popular wish and represents the British desire to get quick action on domestic problems of reconstruction as well as to move toward national ownership and other aspects of socialism—in other words, to the left. Finally, it is said that with it is full appreciation of Mr. Churchill as a war leader. The country doubted his ability to create the sort of peace-time economy needed.

His personal prestige was not enough to overcome this feeling.
Probably there is truth in all these explanations and in others. They do not, however, even combined, seem adequate to account for so complete a defeat for so great a man.

IT IS EASIER—and his friends
will prefer—to find the explanation in the pages of history. It is pointed out that except for a few instances it is an historic fact that after all wars, the war leaders in the victorious countries have not been retained by the people. The best example is that of the first World War. Within a short period after that war, the successful war leaders—and their parties—had been swept out of power in every victorious country—Clemenceau in France, Orlando in Italy, David Lloyd George in England and Woodrow Wilson here. In these and other instances the people turned away from their war leaders at the first opportunity after the war. The reason for this, it is contended, is that the people, filled with resentment, irritations and grievances over a long period of war rationing, privations, burdensome taxes, regimentation and regulations, develop an irresistible desire for a change in rulers, particularly if the rulers had been long in office, and vote for it the first chance they have.

—O—

THIS, at least, is as plausible as any of the other reasons advanced for the Churchill defeat and is buttressed by some impressive precedents. There is also the widely held belief that if the German surrender had occurred and the doom of Japan been clear when the late President Roosevelt ran for the fourth time, he would have been badly defeated for the same reasons, notwithstanding the formidable political combination which he had created. Certainly, that is a reasonable contention. It is not worth while dwelling further on explanations. Mr. Churchill is out.
A real Labor government with an ambitious socialistic program and full control is in. There will be other country has ever produced.

slight change—if any—in British foreign policy. The changes will be in the domestic field and these will be interesting and important. It remains to be seen whether the Labor party has the ability to implement its program, and if it has,
how the British people will like it.
There is this also to remember—
full responsibility for all unpleasant and untoward happenings in the period of reconversion and reconstruction is now on the Labor party. For whatever goes wrong, its leaders will be blamed, and a good many things are bound to go wrong.
They have now inherited all the headaches. Mr. Churchill has escaped these. Defeat will not meas-urably diminish his stature as one of the greatest men his or any other country has ever produced.

AMERICAN STEEL SWAMPS ARROWS BY SCORE OF 14-2

Fleetwings Loses All Hope of Taking Part in the Playoff Series

IS HELD TO FIVE HITS

Mulholland Tries Three Pitchers But None Was Good Enough

The Fleetwings Arrows' hopes of gaining a position in the playoffs of the Trenton Industrial League took a drop last evening on Leedom's field as the airplane workers were laced by the league-leading American Steel team, 14-2.

Sixteen hits mixed with nine errors made the Steelers' triumph more easy as Manager Johnny Mulholland changed pitchers three times in the tilt. He started with "Toby" Oriola, former Bristol High hurler, and then used Benny Bintliffe and Jack Schaffe. All received their share of a pounding from the Steelers and their share of poor fielding support.

The losers were held to five hits by "Spider" Kelly and these were made by "Bill" Fine, who had three, and Risoldi, who had the other pair. Fine also made three errors in the game, while Joe Lukens had a pair of miscues. The American Steel team played errorless ball.

Elks' Committees Battle at Softball

The annual softball game between members of Bristol Lodge of Elks, 970, house and entertainment committees, was held last night. The game was called in the fifth inning on account of darkness, with the score 26-26.

The highlights of the game was a home-run by "Jungle Joe" Norton, lively fly-catching by "Sporty" Jenkins; flying tackle, "I Protest Morgan," "Dutch" Rathke.

A return match is possible next year.

YOUTH LEAGUE TO MEET

A meeting of the Bristol Youth League will be held Wednesday evening in the Diamond store at 7:30 o'clock. All managers are requested to be present.

TWO GAMES BOOKED TO BE PLAYED TONIGHT

Two games are scheduled to be played in the Bristol Suburban League this evening. The Schutte-Koerting nine will meet Badenhausen at Cornwells Heights, while Rohm & Haas and Diamond clash on the Maple Beach diamond.

Badenhausen is leading the second half race with two wins and without a defeat. Diamond has won its only game played in the second half.

The Diamond-Rohm & Haas game of last Monday evening will be played next Monday on the Maple Beach field.

CAREY TO PITCH FOR THE VOLTZ NINE

Al Carey will do the hurling for the Voltz-Texaco team this evening as it lines up against the league-leading American Steel aggregation on Leedom's field at 6:15 o'clock. The game is a Trenton Industrial League contest.

Carey has proven very effective against the Steelers in his showing against them and given the proper support may turn in a triumph for the Oilers. "Shine" Angelina will be Carey's receiver.

Last evening, the Voltz-men went to Wentzel field, Trenton, where they were blanked by the Prison Officers, 2-0. The veteran, Fred Burkley, pitched for the Guards and held the Bristol team to five hits. "Parrot" Dick, who hurried for Voltz, got off to a shaky start and allowed two runs the first inning. He blanked the Guards for the remainder of the tilt.

Eight Registrars Ready To Begin Tour of The County

Mrs. Estella W. Laubach and Warren S. Buck, both of Quakertown. Mrs. Jessie Gwinner and Mrs. Carrie J. Shellenberger, both of Doylestown, will serve on the No. 2 Board No. 3, which will work in lower Bucks, includes Mrs. Maude E. Carter, Parkland, and Mrs. Natalie, Eddington.

The extra board, which is composed of Mrs. Mabel E. Morgan, Doylestown, and Grover C. Chittick, Danboro Pike, will sit only one day, August 2, at the Newport Road Community Chapel, Maple Shade, Bristol township.

The registrars will sit in each borough and township during Aug. 1 to Aug. 27, inclusive, but not in each election district. The hours for registration are 10 a. m. to 3 p. m., during the day and 7 to 10 p. m. in the evening.

In addition, the Registration Office in the Administration Building, here, will be open for registration daily from 8:30 to 4 and Saturday from 8:30 to 12 noon.

As a special convenience to the electors the office will be open from 7 to 9 p. m., on the evenings of Aug. 28, Sept. 5, 7, 12 and 14. On Saturday, Sept. 15, the office will be open from 8:30 to 4.

Monday, Sept. 17, is the last day to register in order to be eligible to vote at the general election on Nov. 6.

A complete schedule of the places and dates the traveling boards will sit during August appears in eight Bucks county newspapers weekly.

Children Protest Will of Father

C. Wetherill, of Bristol township, is named executrix.

The appeal to the Orphans' Court has been taken by Earl J. Phipps, Helen D. Turner, Mildred D. Brady, Selma E. Guthridge and Edmund G. Phipps, through their attorney, J. Leslie Kilcoyne, of Bristol.

The will filed June 6th directs that $5,000 in cash be bequeathed to Phipps' housekeeper, Susan Prithold, and that the Phipps home on North Radcliffe street, Bristol township, and an automobile, be left to her also.

A bequest of $500 is made to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Bequests of $500 each are made to the following children: Earl J. Phipps, Helen D. Turner, Selma E. Guthridge and Mildred D. Brady, while all the remainder of the estate is bequeathed to a son, Edmund G. Phipps, who according to the will, worked with his father in the milk business for a number of years and assisted him in accumulating his estate.

Report Polio Cases At Manumit Camp

state. Two boys whose cases were definitely diagnosed yesterday were taken at once to Abington Hospital and the other one admitted early this morning. A fourth boy taken ill early today is believed possibly to be a victim also.

A quarantine has been placed over the entire camp which houses 84 girls and boys, five to 13 years of age.

Those whose cases have been definitely diagnosed as "polio" are: Robert Ziegler, 8, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Christopher Leighton, 9, of Albuquerque, N. M.

Lawrence Cox, 5, of Long Island City, N. Y.

The case of Cox is an abortive one, states Dr. Charles R. Costa, South Langhorne, who was called in the cases. The term "abortive" is used, states Dr. Costa, when there is no paralysis accompanying the disease.

The condition of Ziegler, the most pronounced case according to camp officials, is considered "fair" at Abington Hospital, while that of Leighton is termed as "good."

Queried as to whether the boys had been bathing in any nearby streams, school officials said that the Cox lad had not been swimming; but that Ziegler and Leighton had been known to have bathed in the small stream which flows under Hulmeville Road and past the school.

During the summer season a camp is operated at Manumit School which caters to regular pupils during the winter season. The same buildings are used as for the winter school sessions. The school is located in what was formerly the Brice property.

State health authorities are working with physicians in keeping a surveillance over the camp, Dr. Costa states.

As Bensalem Township cases were hospitalized, two more deaths were reported at Trenton, N. J. These are: Joan E. Brown, 10, who died in Mercer Hospital 24 hours after admission; and Claude Emmons, 41, of Hamilton Township, who died in Donnelly Hospital, shortly after admission.

Four new cases of the disease were also listed yesterday at the Philadelphia Hospital for Contagious Diseases.

Last year the Manumit Associates, Inc., applied for certificate of authority "to establish and maintain an experimental school primarily for the children of workers, which shall be loyal to the aims of organized labor and faithful to the scientific spirit in modern education."

CROYDON EDGES WAY INTO LEAD OF YOUTH LEAGUE

Croydon A. C. Nine Defeats Croydon Y. M. A. By Score of 9 to 1

LOSERS HAD 11 ERRORS

Threatened Rally in Third Inning Was Nipped By Double Play

CROYDON, July 31.—The Croydon A. C. nine edged its way into first place in the Bristol Youth League last evening by an easy 9-1 win over the Croydon Y. M. A., on the State Road field.

The A. C. took advantage of 11 Y. M. A. errors to chalk up the triumph. Jack Hansen pitched for the winners and gave up three scattered hits. He fanned eight batters and helped his mates on the offense by driving in four runs with two singles.

A threatening Y. M. A. rally in the third inning was nipped by a double-play. Young to Schmidt to Franco, George Sperling pitched for the losers and did well until his support faltered.

the church were decorated with white gladioli and fern.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a princess gown of ivory satin and net, en train. The long waisted sate in bodice had a sweetheart neckline embroidered with satin steeches braid, and long tight-fitting sleeves. The full floor-length skirt was of net. Her tulle veil was edged in scalloped lace and was held in place by a tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones. She wore white kid slippers, and her bridal bouquet was composed of white lilies. She wore a marcasite miraculous medal, a gift from the groom.

Her only attendant, her sister, Miss Eleanor Wunsch, was attired in a pale blue gown of mousseline de soie, made on princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline, blue shoulder-length veil held in place with a blue floral headpiece. Elbow-length lace gloves and blue slippers completed her ensemble. She carried peach-glow gladioli.

The best man was Louis Wunsch, S. 2/c, brother of the bride.

The organist for the mass was Miss Elizabeth Tryon, and soloists were Mrs. Timothy Coyne, Sr., and Miss Patricia Coyne, who sang "Ave Maria," "Mother At Your Feet is Kneeling," "O Lord I Am Not Worthy" and "O Sacred Heart."

The groom has just returned from overseas duty where he had been for the past year. After being wounded in Germany, he returned to the United States to recuperate. The bride will reside at the home of her parents pending the groom's discharge from the service.

For a trip to Beach Haven and Atlantic City, N. J., the bride was attired in a light green gabardine suit with black accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, with 100 guests attending.

Okinawa Fighter To Give Battle 'Report'

shifts, and at Plant 1 at the same hours August 3rd.

Col. Hawkins will describe the nation's "hardest campaign"—the battle for Japan. His visit is the first of a series of "Front-line battle reports," in which veterans recuperating at various hospitals will visit Fleetwings and tell of their combat experiences.

Four days before he landed in this country to begin his tour of critical war plants, Col. Hawkins was fighting on the front lines at Okinawa. With nine other Marines and 30 Army men, he was flown to the States to give war workers a first-hand account of the fierce resistance our armed forces are meeting as they approach Japan's inner defenses.

Fresh from the longest and hardest Pacific campaign since Guadalcanal, Col. Hawkins stresses the fact that success on Okinawa, as in all invasions, depended directly upon continuous support from the home front.

He escaped from the latter in April, 1943, and served as a leader of Philippine guerrilla forces until November, 1943, for which he was awarded the D. S. C. by Gen. MacArthur.

Japan's War Damage Mounts To Most Staggering Heights

Devastation caused by Anglo-American carrier planes in raids on the Inland Sea area Saturday momentarily held the spotlight.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in his second communication of the day today that the combined forces sank or damaged 139 Jap vessels Saturday in raids by upwards of 1,500 carrier aircraft. This represented an increase of 21 Jap ships—including four warcraft—now reported as sunk Saturday.

This day of attacks in the Inland Sea area broke the back of whatever remained of the Japanese Imperial Navy and laid waste ground installations over a wide area.

Nimitz's report on Saturday's strikes—described as "final"—listed 181 Jap aircraft destroyed or damaged.

Only a few hours before listing this additional damage to Japan's war machine, Nimitz had announced preliminary results of yesterday's air strikes at the central Honshu area and revealed that a group of American destroyers shelled Shimizu, on the south Honshu coast early today.

Shimizu lies only 75 miles from Tokyo. It was the second target bombed by surface forces within 24 hours. A task force including the battleships USS Massachusetts and the HMS George V, had shelled Hamamatsu, on the south Honshu coast around midnight Sunday.

Hamamatsu's industrial and communications installations were heavily damaged by the 1,000-ton fleet bombardment.

Nimitz listed 60 Jap vessels sunk or damaged on the basis of preliminary reports from yesterday's strikes. The raiding planes also blasted another Jap naval base, at Maizuru, on Wakasa Bay, 245 miles west of Tokyo.

Two-based Mustang fighters also added to the destruction inflicted on the enemy's home island of Honshu yesterday. The Mustangs sank or damaged 25 to 30 non-combatant Jap vessels in raids on the Osaka-Kobe area.

Far East air force planes of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's force also added to the monumental list of Jap shipping crippled. From Okinawa bases, the Far East planes flew more than 500 sorties Sunday in their third straight day of intensive raids against Japan.

Thirty-five Jap vessels were reported sunk or damaged in these sorties. In other widespread raids, MacArthur's planes accounted for an additional 116 Jap surface craft.

M. O. R. E. . . . to bring their Sunday total to 151 enemy ships sunk or damaged.

MacArthur gave only a brief report on the Borneo fighting. He said that "steady attrition of enemy personnel and supplies" was continuing in the Balikpapan and Brunei Bay sectors. Allied planes continued their raids against Jap ground installations in the Borneo area.

On Guam, a switch in command in the Superfortress organization saw Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay move up to the post of chief of staff to Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, head of U. S. Strategic Air Forces.

LeMay, who is replaced as 20th Air Force commander by Lt. Gen. Nathan Twining, has directed the B-29s in blasting and burning the Japanese homeland with more than 125,000 tons of bombs. The change in commands takes place officially at midnight.

On the Asiatic continent, Chinese forces finished the job of clearing Kwelin of Japanese troops and fought northward 15 miles to enter the southern suburbs of Linchaw.

Recapture of Kwelin, former headquarters of the U. S. 14th Air Force, climaxed weeks of bitter fighting by Chinese troops in their victorious "comeback" campaign.

aged about 45, Edison, died at 12:30 o'clock Saturday morning in the Emergency Hospital.

The game was in progress when Mr. Lyons was stricken, and he was taken to the hospital in the O. P. James Memorial ambulance.

He was the husband of Mrs. Alma Lyons, a teacher in the Doylestown Township Consolidated School at Edison, and had been under the care of his physician for some time.

A representative of an insurance company, Mr. Lyons had been unable to work for some time.

Originally from Mahoney City, Mr. Lyons later lived in Philadelphia, but several years ago he took up residence in Edison, where he has since resided.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Lyons is survived by a daughter, Catherine, at home.

The deceased was a member of the Doylestown Township Emergency Police. He was also a member of the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, Doylestown.

NEWS ROUND-UP

By International News Service
Sen. Kenneth Wherry (R) Neb., predicted today that meat will be scarcer than ever by next winter. Wherry said the present increase in supplies is temporary and is due to Army curtailments in purchases. He warned that "one of these days the Army will cancel these and things will get tougher."

Wherry insisted that a short corn supply coupled with other factors will make the meat situation worse. He said it could be improved by giving producers better prices.

Diplomatic observers in Washington expect that American relations with Argentina will undergo an exhaustive review when Secretary of State James F. Byrnes returns from Potsdam.

The Department is reported to be badly shaken by a divergence of opinion over the treatment to be accorded the Argentine government. The internal crisis was brought to a head by embarrassment stemming from American policy which permitted Argentina to gain a seat in the United Nations Security organization.

Some officials who oppose close diplomatic relations with the "colonels' clique" which controls Argentina are said to have asked for transfers to other fields.

Rep. May (D) Ky., said today that 70 per cent of the soldiers favor the Army's point system of discharges. May is Chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee.

He disclosed that the War Department took a poll last month of troops to determine their reaction to the point system. Seventy per cent favored it, while 25 per cent were opposed to it and five per cent were undecided.
